Mob Attacks, Plots In China Struggle

Washington Post

HONG KONG Wuhan, central China's most important industrial centre, is in the grip of a violent factional struggle that has brought deaths, mob attacks on gov-ernment offices and secret plots, according to official provincial broadcasts.

The radio reports complain of ongoing sabotage activities after a summertime peak of factional fighting. They provide the most exhaustive and revealing account to date of turmoil in outlying Chinese provinces hidden up to now from foreign observers here and in Peking.

Together with equally startling though less-detailed news broadcasts from other provinces, the Wuhan report suggests a level of violence in China over the past few months far beyond what Creign analysts had guessed. Instead of just a few scat-tered "wallposter campaigns and work slowdowns, much of China appears to be going through or has just completed a period of passion, and des-truction rivelling the worst months of the Cultural Revoution a decade ago.

New nation-wide appeals for discipline and restraint in-dicate the pitched battles of 1976, like those in 1967, have left a residue of bitterness that will be difficult for the new administration of Communist party Chairman Hua Kuo-leng to erase. The broadcasts monitored there Wednesday and Thursday said Wuhan, a commercial and steel-making centre of 3 million people; was "thrown into chaos." As a measure of the seriousness of the city's problems. Hua and the party Central Committee called its leadership and that Province to Peking for consul-

Vander Zalm said that, if it appears the new program is working a hardship, he might recommend that the old rates be restored, MacBain said.

Despite the new legislation, families that were receiving the rate of $450 per month have continued to get that amount. It is only new appli-cants who would receive the $355 per month rate.

MacBain said she is optimistic that changes will come as a result of the first meeting and an era of consul-tation seems to be replacing the former system of making statements back and angry statements back forth through the press.

"I do not expect this gov-ernment to be generous in view of their track record on welfare but at least Mr. Vander Zalm appeared to be sympathetic to our problems. He is not as much a tyrant as

Your hair problems —are they inherited?

If you have any of the symptoms listed below, chances are that you're a victim of seborrheic dermatitis. And you should know that this condition may now be prevented in the home.

Research from England showed that over 80% of patients suffering from excessive hair loss could have prevented this with the proper attention to hair and scalp care. And following on from twenty years of research into skin and hair problems, Finnish scientists have synthesized a product designed to arrest hair loss due to seborrheic dermatitis, and even stimulate dormant follicles into producing new hair.

The product is called BIOSCAL.

Going strictly by the balance sheet, the 90-odd promises the party made to the voters last year, Social Credit hasn't done all that well. Only a very few of the political pledges have been redeemed, and those some of the easiest to enact. Legislation to set up an auditor-general's office was enacted, and the talent search is on now. Ombudsman legislation was introduced. MLAs' salaries were cut. Crown leaseholders were allowed to buy their leased land from the government. The homeowner grant was extended. Bennett appears to have lost the faith. ICBC is still there and the land commission is as protective as ever of B.C. farmland, despite promises to allow competition with the former and to abolish the latter (along with all other non-elected government boards and commissions, it might be added).

The new administration also betrayed an undecorous cynicism early in the game when it began appointing all kinds of old Socreds to government positions. It was a particularly unseemly rush for spoils considering the unholy ruckus the party raised while in opposition about the NDP doing the very same thing.

But of course, the jury is still out. One poll published recently shows the Socreds enjoying an unchanged level of popularity throughout the year. Most people are probably still angry about the hammer blows rained onto them by the Socreds' first budget, but Bennett still has two years to turn things around. If he can't deliver on his central campaign promise "to get the economy moving again," wrapping up everything from more jobs to more available housing and stable food prices, then he has something to worry about. But not much. Even if B.C. fails to move out of its current economic stagnation, the most a Social Credit party seeking rewas revised. Wyse might look into marketing a

This could be expected from any recently elected avowed separatist provincial government feeling its oats after years of being treated as a dirty joke. But what really hurts is to see the other nine provinces eagerly backing Quebec's demands for more powers.

Where are all those patriotic, if platitudinous, statements of the premiers the day after the Quebec election? Where is that philosophical faith in Canada? Separatists movements continue to spawn in B.C. and Alberta while the premiers sharpen their fiscal scalpels to castrate the federal government

The provinces have agreed in principle on some federal withdrawal from social welfare programs such as hospitals and medicare. Instead of matching grants Ottawa would finance its contributions by a 50 per cent cash grant, while the other half would be raised by transferring more taxing powers to the provinces.

Ottawa would still have enough power to oversee national standards of care through its control of cash grants. Yet even this major change in fiscal policy leaves some of the provinces howling. Now they are demanding more tax points that would provide them with $860 million more in the first year, rising to $1.3 billion

As Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said, that would leave Ottawa with little scope to introduce new programs or reduce taxes. In essence, the provinces appear to want Ottawa to act as broker, taking a small commission, while the provinces gather it all into their greedy.

Decentralization has become the political alchemists' new phlogiston. It will turn everything into gold in the eyes of in-satiable premiers. They bend over their Bunsen burners, coming up with ever new ions, never noticing that the whole laboratory is quaking and smoking.

Alberta's Premier Peter Lougheed demands that Canadian oil prices match world prices but he also wants subsidized freight rates so Alberta products will be more competitive. Economic reality is a Levesque moralized that Confederation wasn't all wrong because it gave Quebec cheaper oil prices — a policy that Lougheed views with unmitigated rage.

It would appear that the panacea of decentralization stops at the bank. A nation of 23 million people peppered over more than three million square miles can't survive without a strong central government. Unless a strong federal regime can ensure equality of opportunity across this land the concept that is our nation, Canada, will not survive.

A threat far worse than Quebec separatism is the greed of English Canadian provinces. From their most recent actions it would appear that the concept of the nation state rings up "no sale" on provincial cash registers. Of course inequities exist in confederation. A new sense of national mind must be effected in the wake of the Quebec election. But a family that allows the children to spend the pay cheque as they see fit is a tyranny oif the whole. He'd as soon spin yarns about the legendary Edmonton Bulletin newspaper, now defunct, where he worked 30 years

A journalist all his life, Hurmuses worked-four years for the Chicago Daily News as a foreign correspondent, a decade for Time magazine and three years (1968-71) for Pan American airlines as public relations director for California. He's a native British Columthough, born in Kamloops, attended Oak Bay High worked a while in Victoria as legislative correspondent for The Canadian Press.

Outside B.C. 22 Years

It's the 10 years at Time that show most in his new book. Power Without Glory is written in Timese, that peculiar punchy writing style invented by the weekly newsmagazine. In Power Without Glory, defiance is: "tightlipped," headlines always: "trumpet" the news. There's always "trumpet" the news. There's careful attention to physical details—the weather in Prince George ("a cold driz-zle") the day Dave Barrett arrived 24 hours after legislating everybody back to work last year; the fact that Barrett "doffed his herringbone tweed jacket, loosened the knot of his Lanvin tie ... "at a rally that night.

Fair Summary of NDP

No doubt a good many other British Columbians believe that too, but it is so simplishic and so onesided, so obviously wrongheaded, painting the NDP as evilhearted blackguards without any edeeming qualities whatsoever.

The evenhanded and balanced account of the Barrett years Hurmuses will leave to the historians, even he admits, but his polemic is so lopsided that even thinking Socreds will dismiss it. That's unfortunate for he provides a fair summary of what the NDP administration did and it is all footnoted (almost all his sources are news papers). Even academics will probably find it a useful ready reference.

Where Hurmuses got unhinged is his conclusions about the NDP. He ignored his ministered when describing the ling" bitter reaction of the press to the Socreds' first budget:

Not Democracy

The NDP-initiated 'industrial democracy" at Kootenay Forest Products is a fraud. Two "worker directors" and six "company directors" ensure company control in its drive for profits which represent the unpaid labor of it's hired workers.

Industrial democracy can only be democratic control of socially-owned industries and services by the workers collectively through the socialist industrial representative government advocated by the Socialist Labor Party. All administrators will represent the worker who elect them to shop, plant, local and national industrial administrative councils. Not "union" bulwarks of capitalist exploitation but socialist industrial unionism, can organize the workers to enforce their victorious socialist ballot by assuming control of the economy to serve their collective needs. - James Minal, Burna-

Gloomy Picture

Now that the B.C. forestry industry is on its back (for some time to come) there are those in both management and labor who are counting on the housing and con struction industry in the U.S. to be the source of recovery. This is clutching at straws when the straws aren't even there The following excerpt from The Dispatcher of Nov. 19 (union paper of the ternational Longshoremen's union) tells it like it really is

'Last month the AFL-CIO's building and construction trades department published the results of a survey made of building trades local unions across the nation in late Aug.-Sept. The jobless rate among construction workers is running 60 per cent in the northeast region of the U.S., 34 per cent in the mid-Atlantic region, 22.9 per cent in the midwest and 20 per cent in the south

Figures received by the four-millionmember building and construction trades department showed New York city with 67.5 per cent of its building and construc-tion workers out of jobs, in San Francisco it was 30.3 per cent, Chicago 30.5 per cent, Tampa, Florida, 34.8 per cent and Philadelphia 48.6 per cent.

President Robert A. Georgine of the AFL-CIO building trades stated that this was the worst job situation in the history of their organization. Worse even than the great depression of the 1930s. Georgine said that his department's figures were based on accurate health and welfare records of the local unions and on pension checkoff records.'

The message is clear: It's going to be a long time before every laid-off woodworker gets back to work. Keeping the true facts covered up is no help to him No, recovery isn't 'just around the corner' south of the border. — Arline Flood,

OTTAWA — Most Canadians, even those illiterate enough to qualify for university entrance, have been taught something about democracy by the time they are old enough to throw their first snowball. It is part of the Canadian faith that this hunk of territory wedged between the United States of Soviet Socialist Republics is a solid bastion of that 'everdiminishing form of govern-

Implicit in the prime minister's statements was the understanding that he will con-tinue to defend the system, and will seek to re-win the hearts and minds of the separatists within the system. Yet, one must wonder: One must wonder not only about Mr. Trudeau and the technocrats with whom he has chosen to surround himself, but one must also wonder about the state of mind of the provincial premiers of this country. # In The Name Of The Plume

By WILLIAM SAFIRE

'John Le Carre' of frigid spy fame has come in out of the cold to point at himself as a fellow named David Cornwall, and

This flight from pseudonymity is a dangerous trend that should not go unremarked. It is psychologically wrenching to have to read an author, whose pen name is warmly familiar, writing under a strange and usually more dreary real

Most readers are willing to participate in the minuet of a nom de plume, but balk at monicker roulette. "Mark Twain" was Samuel L. Clemens and "O. Henry" was William Sydney Porter; we all know that; but they did not switch in the midstream Nor did Mary Ann Evans, writing under the name of "George Eliot," and Amandine Dudevant, who called herself "George Sand." Women have a tradition who called herself of writing under other names, usually men's — Sylvia Porter signed her financial columns "S.F. Porter" for year-but pseudonymity is not always an attempt to avoid sexism. "Mary Renault," author of "Bull From the Sea," is Mary Challans; and Cecily Andrews adopted the name of an Ibsen heroine she once played: "Rebec-

Mythical or historic pseudonyms are not making it. Alexander Hamilton, John Jay and James Madison set the standard as "Publius" in the Federalist Papers, and "Cassandra" and "Pendennis" can be found in British publications, but in the U.S. one of the rare examples is. "Sisyphus," a good name for the Capitol Hill correspondent for Commonweal, referring to the devious god condemned to

On the New Republic, "Sedulous" appeared to be a mythic name, but was not: the deceptive adjective's Latin root is "without guile," and cloaked former editor Gilbert Harrison. "TRB's" cover has long been blown as Richard Strout of The Christian Science Monitor.

The New Yorker magazine once had a great tradition of noms de plume, but it's no longer a secret that "Genet," the writer of letters from Paris, is Janet Flanner, and racing writer "Audax Minor" is George Rvall.

What is it about successful pen name writers, that they now feel compelled sly-ly to reveal or ostentatiously to advertise their true identities? They would serve ample of 'economist John Kenneth

Perhaps today's pseudonymous authors are going through identity crisis, and no longer find satisfaction in having their masks become celebrated. It is as if they have suddenly been seized with the need to compete with their own images.

Since writers with a passion for personal privacy are abandoning the field and now oppress us with the reality of their true names and faces, cannot readers pick up the fallen plume? If all of us — no matter what we do — made up a name that we could read under, would we not enjoy our

If all nonwriters had noms de plume of their own choosing, gone would be the embarrassment of readers with ethnic names intruding on Gothic novels. A couple of weeks ago Goldstream Park was a hive of activity, with salmon and people, in what seemed like equal numbers, vying for attention. But while the people — for the most part — were watching the salmon, the salmon seemed completely indifferent to the people.

Well, all that has changed now. The people are gone — at wen, an that has changed how. The people are gone—at least most of them—and so are the salmon—at least in spirit. The great Goldstream salmon run is over for another year. Now instead of people watching salmon, it's gulls, eagles, herons, and probably racoons watching salmon—or what is left of them. You see the Goldstream Avian and Terrestrial Sanitation Authority (G.A.T.S.A.) has moved in, and they're hard at work recycling the remains of the great event. they're hard at work recycling the remains of the great event that attracted so many people a month ago.

It isn't a pretty sight. Salmon carcasses and skeleton: are strewn grotesquely over the rocks, along the shore and even up in the underbrush where they've been dragged. And the air over the stream? Well, that has to be smelled to be

. But the odor and the environment hold no fear for G.A.T.S.A. They're right in there, up to their bellies, feeding on what is left of those once-magnificent salmon. * * *

G.A.T.S.A. may be under the control of the Glaucou winged Gulls these days because these big fellows, which seem out of place among the trees along Goldstream, were prominent among the crew at work last Sunday. And obviously their efforts were beginning to take effect. There were few salmon left that could be described as being anything more salmon left that could be described as being anything more than skin and bone. More than that, most of the big gulls-could scarcely work up enough steam to get out of your way, so full were they of rewards of their craft.

The Glaucous-wings were getting yeoman support from a smattering of Mew Gulls who were apparently unintimidated by the raucous bickerings of their big cousins. Even one Bald Eagle and a Great Blue Heron were there, but they reluctantly decamped when I appeared on the scene. And little prints in the wet bank of the stream — prints like tiny human hands - told of the under-cover presence of a racoon working at night.

After the Salmon, The Clean-up Gang

But it was a rather pale gull, slightly smaller than a Glaucous-wing that stood near it, which caught my interest. To my jaundiced eye, it bore no obvious field marks on its plumage; except for pink legs and feet, a yellow bill with a block it was all white.

The white was a bit the worse for wear considering the bird's recent activities, but under the dirt and grime it

Normally I avoid strange looking gulls. They're a touchy bunch to identify at the best of times, but when you get one that doesn't fit any known pattern then it's time to play some other game.

My first reaction to this bird was albinism — I always fall back on albinism when I see strange white birds. But if this was an albino, then it was an albino with a difference. Only its plumage lacked color pigments, the key to an albino; its legs, eyes and beak appeared normal.
So if it isn't an albino, then what is it?

When dealing with strange gulls that are mostly white, and which can't be pigeon-holed as albinos, I turn to those great pale gulls of the Arctic — birds like the Glaucous and Iceland gulls. I have to admit that when I began to think Arctically the strange of the company of t tic gull, I hesitated a moment before going on—deep in the greenery of a coast rain forest didn't seem like the place to well, to pull this story into its allotted space on the page, size told me to drop the Iceland gull and concentrate on Glaucous; my bird was just too big for an Iceland but, according to the book, it was also too small to be a Glaucous. The best references I could find put the Glaucous a little learner than a Claucous with the bird. I had for comparison to the page of the page of the page of the page. larger than a Glaucous-winged - the bird I had for com-

I was in a quandary that usally ends with me saying to hell with gulls anyway, and going home in a huff. This time was no exception.

So, if you're out around Goldstream watching the activities of G.A.T.S.A. and see a large, all-white gull, don't phone me. I don't know what it is either.

The Case of the Disappearing Student ... And How the Board Has Reacted

By MIKE HUGHES Times Staff

How would you plan for the future of an enterprise which has lost 5,000 clients in the past seven years and stands to drop another 4,000 in the next five?

That is the problem the trustees and administration of the Greater Victoria School District have to grapple with. eFaced with such a drastic drop in envolment they have to wind down the system, re-ducing the number of buildings and square footage of space.

But how do they do it? Some schools have to be other growing areas have to be provided with more facili-ties with the latest educational improvements.

How do trustees explain boarding up schools while others are overflowing? How do they justify the expense of a new school when others have empty classrooms:

declining enrolment and in a period of fiscal restrainf?

These are the kinds of quetions that elected school trustninistrators, have to wrestle

School District 61, the third largest in the province, responded to the challenge at the 11th hour.

It was only in July, 1975, nat the board, appointed someone to begin some longterm planning. By that time enrolment had dropped from 31,768 in 1969 to 28,142 in Sep-

Les Canty, superintendent of administrative services, de partment of education: "Th drop in enrolment has been sharper than either the de-partment or the school board had anticipated."

All of these statements, plus the context in which they were given, point to the necessity for more long-term planning in the district, before millions of dollars are wasted and education suffers:

Those closest to the prob-lem, Ross, Bunn and Wiens, all agree — there is a need for a thorough study of the administration, including the structure and personnel. All three support the idea that more long-range planning

Included in his list of waste-ful projects is the decision to build Spectrum community school, Lambrick junior-senior high school and Tor-

He says another $250,000 to $300,000 was wasted when the district decided in 1975 to put

He says Cedar Hill has an enrolment of 516 and a capacity, of 819. About $400,000 was spent recently on alterations including the addition of two classrooms, he adds.

He says he's been told the to justify the need for Lam brick when in fact there is a great deal of empty space.

On the subject of building Torquay at a cost of $800,000, Cunningham says the school board neglected a provision for expansion at another chool that was made years

He said trustees are often faced with making a stupid decision only because it is the least stupid alternative to a pressing problem.

Cunningham said school board employees often come to him with tales of what they consider to be outrageous examples of a waste of money.

These things upset the workers, he says, because they know when the next round of negotiations resumes, the school district will ay it can't afford to pay any Bunn said a lack of longrange planning has been one of the district's shortcomings. ees is not made any easier by the "on-again, off-again" kind of financing from the provincial government.

He said it is very difficult to plan over the long term when funds are provided on a year-to-year basis.

Bunn, who owns and operates a small contracting business, served as chairman of the board in 1967-68 and 1973-74.

He said there are those on the school board and in the administration who share a feeling common to many trustees in the province that no problem is too big that can't be solved by spending more money.

As a businessman, he said, he has found out that money does not solve some problems and with a little effort, better service can be provided with the judicious use of existing

A longer look at the budget would allow a closer examina-tion of areas where expendi-tures could be reduced with the minimum amount of dam-age to the educational process

Canty, superintendent of administrative services with the department of education, said the forecasts of future enrol-ments are getting more and more accurate.

He said he is working with the Greater Victoria school district, as well as other dis-tricts, in an effort to work out long-term planning.

The school districts submit now but he says they don't stick to them.

The hope is that the districts would agree to stick to the plans and vary projects only if they provide an adequate reason for doing so.

Dear Friends, Aquaintances and Clients:

After almost a year and a half as sales manager for our company, I have decided to return to the position of salesman and join our successful sales team. This move was necessitated by an overwhelming number of requests by people such as yourselves for my own "personal" assistance with their/your real estate needs. As a "non-competing" manager, I was unable to offer my direct assistance with the buying and selling of your properties.

Now as a salesman, once again I can offer you my full and undivided attention and request that you feel free to call me at anytime to discuss your requirements.

We were on our way to Western Samoa, but were spending a couple of days in Pago. For one thing I wanted to see if it had changed, which, of course, it hasn't. Unless you count Soli's new restaurant on Rainmaker Bay.

Soli's is operated by Sa-moan High Chief Soli Aolaola-

PAGO PAGO — Here we are (yawn) in American Samoa (The nicest thing about a visit to Pago Pago is the ride back to the airport.) I don't mean to imply that it's dull. But nearly everyone. agrees there are only two ways to amuse yourself: Either watch the sun shine or watch it rain.

If you arrive any time be-tween December and the middle of March, almost surely it will be raining. Up to a couple of hundred inches on the mountain peaks.

Obviously, this was the season when Somerset Maughan jumped ship in Pago Pago Bay. Why else would he have titled his classic Rain?

Pago Pago would have been better off if they'd never given his heroine, Sadie Thompson, the boot. Maybe Sadie Thompson did corrupt a missionary, the Rev. Davidson. But wasn't it better than dying of boredom?

Samoans swear Sadie
Thompson was real. They say she strolled off a ship one day carrying her wind-up Victrola, hips swinging. She boarded the same ship several months later, hips still in motion.

She'd been asked to go. The locals point out the rooming house where she drank, made love and played her Victrola and watched it

And Lord, how it rained! While it was pouring outside, Sadie was pouring inside. They say she had, a penchant for rum. The old boardinghouse where she partied turned out its last guest several years ago. Now it's a market. But never mind. There are other watering holes. The Bamboo for one. The Seaside Garden for another.

Customers gather at the Bamboo for the happy hour every afternoon between 4 and 6 o'clack when drinks are only 60 cents. Sometimes there's entertainment. Sometimes a fight.

At the Seaside Garden the proprietor has scratched the house rules on a blackboard next to the bar.

First, no customer is permitted more than three drinks at a time and fighting is forbidden, although the rules are broken occasionally. The Samoans love a good time.

The Seaside is a tin-roof shack on the waterfront where mostly everyone drinks beer, although the specialties are Spam sandwiches and boilermakers. First a coaling station, Spam sandwiches and Pago Pago later came under the administration of the Navy and afterward the Department of the Interior.

Two double-storey wings contain 163 rooms. Another 25 are available in Samoan-style falls. Rates at $28 single and $20 double.

$30 double.

Operated earlier by InterContinental, the Pan Am subsidiary, the Rainmaker was one of the snazziest hotels in the South Seas. They had great plans for it. It was the biggest thing to happen in Pago Pago since Sadie took her leave.

Now though it's getten

Now, though, it's gotten tacky, its carpets worn and its walls in need of paint.

Still, the view from the dinstill, the view from the din-ing room is worthy of praise. The windows frame the har-bor and Rainmaker Mountain, just as they do from the Sadie Thompson lounge that pours just as Sadie did — from morning till late at night.

The dining room serves what is described as a Samoan chief's breakfast: grilled corned beef hash patties, a poached egg, slice of taro and boiled, green bengang. In poached egg, siee of tare and boiled green bananas. In the evening they switch to the High Talking Chief's Dinner: chicken, taro, boiled green beens and coconut pudding.

Now guests amuse them-selves snorkeling in the bay or else sunbathing beside a swimming pool perched high over the harbor.

Before the new Rainmaker, only one hotel operated in Pago Pago. It was Mary Pritchard's Rainmaker Inn, and it wasn't much of a hotel. The bedsprings squeaked and the rain sounded like a rivet gun

The event takes place Friday at McPherson Playhouse at 8:30 p.m. and will also have as a special guest, Bill's sister, the talented comediensinger-actress, Dorothy Hosic, appearing on stage for the appearing on stage for the first time since she officially "retired" three years ago.

Bill's dossier shows that he has appeared in dozens of productions from coast to coast, including the Charlotte town Festival and tours with Feux Follets, in nightclubs and on television.

He will be offering a variety of songs old and new includ-ing a tribute to Broadway musicals and a segment of music from his native Scotland.

Adding a touch of comedy to the musical show will be impressionist Steve Ivings. Also assisting, Kathy Roberts will perform some numbers in her "Julie London" torch-singer style.

Tickets are on sale at the McPherson box office.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Ross Allan Burkholder pleaded guilty to a charge under the B.C. fisheries regulations in Victoria Provincial Gourt Friday and was fined by Judge William Ostler, who also ordered the confiscation of the 145 coho salmon and two spring salmon which fish-eries officials found on Burk-holder's boat, the White Lady.

Court was told Burkholder was apprehended with the fish near Compass Rose, just off merical fishing season legally opened.

Burkholder asked for and received one month in which to pay the fine.

traced to only one legend of long ago. As the story goes, the jovial old driver of the reindeer dripped some gold coins down a chimney one night. Instead of falling on the hearth, these coins went into a stocking which was hanging by the fireside to dry. Santa Claus has been expected to fill any stockings he finds when he makes his call ever since. In some parts of Europe stockings are hung on St

The perfect family gift

If your family is like some families we know you're at your wit's end what to give Mom and Dad for Christmas something different that they haven't already got umpteen of that will bring them genuine year-round pleasure! And what is the paragon of gifts? None other than one of the TV Converters we saw at Standard-Furniture this week! It's a compact thing not much bigger than one of those metal telephone indexes and you work it just about the same way. It hooks into any cable set-up. works with any TV set, even the old-fashioned kind. Can be placed beside a favorite chair, or at the bedside and not only brings in all those new mid-band channels, but takes care of the fine tuning changes channels in the wink of an eye turns the set on or off by remote control. Now wouldn't this be a dilly of a gift for someone dear to you? Standard's TV converter is priced at under $100. and not only does it add enormously to the pleasure of TV viewing but it prolongs the life of the set because it by-passes the tuner, which is usually the first part to go. Drop in to Standard this coming week and see one of these electronic marvels in action! Standard Furniture Co., 737 Yates St., 382-5111. The perfect family gift.

You too can look like Eva Gabor!

If you're "well-stacked" like those fabulous Gabor women meaning you've got a curvaceous figure ... but never feel you look as smashing in your clothes as they do ... hurry with all speed to Charmante's and cast an eye at some new, evening dresses imported from California, and bearing the "Eva Gabor Look by Estevez" label ... They're designed especially for women like Eva Gabor ... and like you! ... Low-necked, artfully cut to enhance a good bust ... and minimize a bit too much tummy! We'll just describe them briefly ... A gorgeous taupe polyester with collar and low surplice front, cream satin collar trim and cuffs ... A black polyester jersey with a diagonal neckline, zipper down one side of the back, and the new bell sleeve ... Not much on the hanger, but we had it modelled for us on the right type of figure and it's a stunner! ... Rosewood is the color of another dress with low cowl neck, long wide sleeves, and curved set-in waist which becomes a belt in the back ... Another dress a bit like the first we mentioned is the color of French vanilla ice cream ... Very suave, with diamante crescent-shaped ornament at the waist ... These dresses for the full figured lady are really something special! ... Charmante's have some charming new party pants sets ... some with jumpers and sheer tunics ... others with pants and tunics ... Charmante's, Hillside Shopping Centre, 595-1555.

Still time to be beautiful:

While we were having our hair done at the Charming Lady this week, it occurred to us that some of you may not have been able to get Christmas and New Year's appointments at your regular hairdressers. so we made enquiries, and found that, while bookings are pretty solid at both the Lady and the Hut. if you get on the phone fast, one or other might be able to work you in before Christmas or New Years. Which leads us to say bookings are pretty solid at both the Lady and the Hut... It you get on the phone fast, one or other might be able to work you in before Christmas or New Years... Which leads us to say something else... With a new year coming upon us... why not try something different in hair do's... and salons?... The guys and gals at Charming Lady and Witch's Hut will be delighted to make the most of the hair the good Lord gave you!... They're all thorough-going "pros"... Tibor, just back from Europe, is busy interpreting his new ideas... especially on the fellows... Paul, the new stylist who has just joined the staff, is dividing his time between both salons... He's a "crimper"... which, we take it, means a super-duper hair cutter! Anyway, he's fantastic... and so are all the rest of them, in our book!... Now we have been asked by the guys and gals of both salons... on their behalf... to wish everyone in Victoria... their clients and those who'll become clients in 1977... A very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year... and say "Thank you, Victoria, you've been so good to all of us!"... Charming Lady, 1712 Douglas St., 385-8133 and Witch's Hut, 728 View St., 388-7368.

Heart Attacks Still a Puzzle

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Why do heart attacks occur in so many young and apparently healthy men and women? My brother is 35, an athlete, and seemed to be in good health when this happened. Can we learn from this experience and prevent trouble of our own?—Mr. B.F.

There is much to be learned about the complex jigsaw puz-zle of heart attacks. Much is known about the general pic is becoming more complete dies have been made in an ef-fort to track down the killer of young hearts. Hundreds of thousands of men and women are involved in these studies from which a great deal of in-formation has accrued. The major reasons for heart

DE'A'R DR. MILLER: twice now, my cat fooled me finto thinking he had a broken leg, limping around and not using it, when all he had was just an infection. Is there some way you can tell the difference at home? I'd like to save some of those expensive trips with him to the hospital.

T.O. ized antibiotics plus localized treatment. The way to save expense is not to ignore the expense is not to ignore the cat's need for help when it has an infection, but to pre-vent it from getting wound in-fections in the first place. Since most of these are actually caused by cat bites and since they're not self-inflicted—the economy approach is to keep your cat in so it can't become bitten in a fight in the first place. DEAR T.O.: Your cat quits using his leg because it hurts. Whether the pain is due to a whether the pain is due to a fracture or swelling resulting from an infection, it can be very difficult to determine. Occasionally the doctor himself must use X-rays to clarify this point. Usually, though, the can be determined it it's an it can be determined in it's an DEAR DR. family is to remain together long enough to become famil-iar, factors other than those already mentioned should be considered. Take size, for in-stance. Fish that are reason-able equal in this respect are more likely to eat the food you give them instead of each other. Eating styles also play a part. Some fish are gulpers, getting their meal over with in a hurry. Others are pickers. They need to have food around to work on for a while. Some of each work well together if suitable meals are offered. Some fish are strictly top feeders, some eat any-where in the tank, and some only from the bottom. The lat-ter group remains on reduced rations unless sufficient food settles down to them. Some fish are simply too aggressive to be kept in a community tank. Compatible community members are a must. ## Dental Plan PQ Priority

MONTREAL (CP) — Free medicine for the elderly and free dental care for the young are among the priorities of the new Quebec government, Social Affairs Minister Denis

Lazure said Friday.
Other items planned include extra day-care centres, home care for the elderly and increased family allowances.

The free medicine program, which might be introudeed as early as February, is to apply to people 65 years and older and would cost the government almost $15 million annually, Lazure said.

Free dental care will be Free dental care will be provided for youngsters up to the age of 18 and for those 65 and older. The program might be introduced in two stages. first to children up to 14 years and later those up to 18.

The cost of the dental program had not yet been determined, Lazure said. Free dental care is already provided to Quebec children under 10, at faced with an anomalous and unprecedented situation in our church. Up till now, all varieties of Anglicans have been able to receive communion together. High-churchmen, low churchmen. Anglo-Catholics, Evangelicals, people of many differing views about many matters, they all knew that they shared in the same apostolic priesthood which the Anglican Church had inherited from the one undivided church of the first centuries.

Now, a new and unprecedented situation has been brought into being. There will now be certain ministers whom some Anglicans can accept but whom other Anglicans will not in conscience be able to regard as priests at all. This unhappy dilemma touches the very heart of the sacred ministry. It will bring uncertainty to the eucharist itself, which our Lord meant to be the centre of unity for his people, and which has been so far Anglicans until

For years, I have been a member of the Society of St. Alban and St. Sergius. This society exists to promote friendship between Anglicans and the Orthodox churches. I have enjoyed some lovely times of fellowship with Orthodox Christians, both in Canada and overseas.

All my ministry, I have worked and prayed earnestly for the healings of these divisions, both with Rome and with the Orthodox. Now all these hopes and expectations have been brought to nothing. am heart-sick at what has

If we reach back one hundred years, we can perhaps find a strange historical parallel. It was in 1870. The maintenance of international peace was precarious. Contemporary society was in a disturbed state. This resulted from the industrial revolution, the rise of Biblical criticism and the disturbing theories of Darwinism. Under pressures of this kind, the Vatican council of that year was persuaded to proclaim the doctrine of the infallibility of the Pope. Anglicans rightly rejected that new doctrine, and they this new doctrine of feminine

Both are things unknown to the primitive church and unknown in the church ever since. Neither has clear warranty in holy Scripture. Both are examples of the church being influenced by a passing temper of mind in the secular temper of mind in the secular society surrounding it.

It would seem that many Roman Catholic theologians now regret the proglamation of papal infallibility and are looking for ways to rein-terpret it. It has proved an embarrassment and has certainly been a real hindrance in ecumenical relations. It certainly looks to us that these present attempts to ordain women will eventually prove a sad embarrassment also. They have already given a new and unexpected setback to our relations with the great majority of other Christians in the world.

I have not concealed from you my distress at wrat has been done. I have written only of the sad consequences and have not touched upon specific arguments. At the back of the church today, you will find a short paper setting out some of these.

In conclusion, I want to end on a note of hope and reassurmake mistakes and lack of wisdom may certainly harm the church, but men cannot destroy it. The certainties of our redemption remain un-changed. Christ died for our sins and has risen again for our justification. His holy spirit is in the church which is his body. This is a time to hold fast to the basic certain-ties of our faith, and to rest in the sureness of his sup-porting love. I will end by quoting some words from a book entitled: God So Loved the World by Elizabeth

Goudge:
"Still the church lives on. She suffers persecution, but the blood of the martyrs is the seed of the Church, and she becomes only the stronger for it. Through the centuries, the world ridicules her, ignores her, tries to use her for its own purposes, and sometimes corrupts her with wealth and power, but she still goes on. Within her body, the sin of her children rends and weakens her, but even that she survives. Sometimes, it seems that the life is crushed out of her, but always she rises again from the dead. She cannot be destroyed for her walls are built up of the souls that love Christ, who are held in the hollow of His hand.

Barss: 'No conclusive reason not to'

I am sympathetic to those who find this ordination difficult to accept and I hope that they can become reconciled to what has happened.

Possible objections have been studied and debated for at least 40 years in the Anglican Church. I am satisfied that commissions set up by appropriate church authorities found no conclusive theological reason for withholding the ordination of women and that the duly constituted gen-eral synod of the Anglican Church of Canada in 1973 ap-proved the ordination, in principle, and in 1975 gave permission for the ordinations to take place, in consultation with the house of bishops.

The Anglican Church of Canada has done nothing to break off relations with other parts of the worldwide Anglican Church, in which women have already been ordained. The ordinations may have strained the church but have not split it. I am sure that the diocese under Bishop Roy Gartrell, comprising Van-Gartrell, comprising Van-couver Island and some adident territories, is not going to secede from the Anglican Church of Canada.

The 1975 General Synod resolved that no person in the church should be "penalized in any manner, nor suffer any canonical disabilities, nor be forced into positions which violate or coerce his or conscience as a result of general synod's action.

I interpret this so-called conscience clause as a guarantee to protect opponents of the ordination of women from viously does not mean that the world has stood still or that the ordinations have not taken place. Nor do I interpret it to give opponents any right to declare the ordinations invalid or to try to divide the church son this

Another reader who had experienced a Christmas tree suddenly exploding into flames, causing severe dam-age to the residence and sending two members of the fami-ly to hospital, vindicated my belief in the importance of being safety-conscious, and I also received backing from the local fire departments.

Many people believe a tree that has been "fireproofed" is perfectly safe. This is not so. There is no product known that will make a coniferous evergreen proof against fire. The known chemicals are The known chemicals are flame retardants, lessening the speed with which the flames spread and preventing the explosion which engulfs a

SALISBURY, Rhodesia They have come from all corners of the United States but they have two things in common: They are Vietnam veterans and they have come to Rhodesia looking for an-

the Rhodesian army, estimated to number 400, and they have become an increasingly important factor in Rhode-sia's rapidly escalating, four-year-old guerrilla war.

This troubled southern Afri-can territory does not have enough white manpower to lead black troops in the anti-guerrilla campaign: all white, colored (as those of mixed) colored (as those of mixed race are officially known) and Asian men between 18 and 38 have already been drafted and blacks serve only as volunteers.

So the army has turned to recruiting what it calls "foreign volunteers" — what other call mercenaries — to help hold off guerrillas now penetrating deep into the country from bases in neighboring Mozambique and Zambia.

There are estimated to be There are estimated to be about 1,000 foreigners in the Rhodesian army and police from West Germany, Canada, Greece, the Netherlands, Australia, Portugal, France, New Zealand, Britain and Sweden.

Eaton's shares Christmas with the Children of the North on a 'Goodwill' trip to Inuvik December 14-16

Every child should experience Christmas. And that's why this season, Eaton's makes a 'Goodwill' trip to the schools and hospitals of faraway Inuvik, N.W.T., bringing Christmas gifts to Eskimo children. These children will receive the Children's Christmas Books, yummy Christmas stockings made up by Eaton's staff and beautiful poinsettia plants. Each specially presented by dear ol' Santa himself, along with two of the contest winners from the "Creative Children's Contest." Our 'Goodwill' staff, including Chuck Davis, and gifts will be flown courtesy of Pacific Western Airlines. The entire exciting event will be filmed by the BCTV television crew. Because moments like these ... May this year bring peace on earth, are worth remembering goodwill to all. And a Merry Christmas, from Eaton's.

Mob Attacks, Plots In China Struggle

Washington Post

HONG KONG Wuhan, central China's most important industrial centre, is in the grip of a violent factional struggle that has brought deaths, mob attacks on gov-ernment offices and secret plots, according to official provincial broadcasts.

The radio reports complain of ongoing sabotage activities after a summertime peak of factional fighting. They pro-vide the most exhaustive and revealing account to date of outlying Chinese provinces hidden up to rom foreign observers here and in Peking.

Together with equally startling though less-detailed news broadcasts from other provinces, the Wuhan report suggests a level of violence in China over the past few months far beyond what Lreign analysts had guessed. Instead of just a few scattered wallposter campaigns and work slowdowns, much of China canceaus to be croined. China appears to be going through or has just completed a period of passion and destruction rivelling the worstmonths of the Cultural Revolution a decade ago.

New nation-wide appeals for 1976, like those in 1967, have left a residue of bitterness that will be difficult for the new administration of Com-munist party Chairman Hua

OTTAWA (FP) - A $450,000 luxury hunting and fishing lodge has been built 250 miles north of Winnipeg with feder-al and provincial government

Known as the "Thunderbird

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — A controversy involv-ing golfers from the United Stafes and Spain quickly sim-mered down in the World Cup international golf tournament Friday when the principals decided not to talk.

"My Spanish friends have told me it is better not to comment," Manuel Pinero of Spain said through an interpreter. He was accused by Americans Dave Stockton and Jerry Pate of improperly cleaning his ball in Friday's second round, an infraction that carries a two-shot pen-

However, Robert Dwyer, a U.S. Golf Association official and a member of the tournament's rules committee, ruled that Pinero's caddy had not cleaned the ball, no rules had been broken and no pen-alty was involved.

The United States, Scotland and Japan were tied for sec-ond at 291. Pate and Stockton dropped back with rounds of 74 and 73 respectively. In the individual competition, Pate has a 144 score, Stockton a 147.

Pate, the U.S .Open champion and Stockton, Profes-sional Golfers' Association National titleholder, drifted well back after the con-troversy on the sixth hole. Ballesteros and Pinero both missed the green and were in the rough on No. 6, with their balls coming to rest only inches apart. Pinero marked his position and removed the ball to enable Ballesteros to the ball to his caddy and "the caddy had a towel in his hand and the ball was in the towel," Pate said. Cleaning of a ball under such a condition is prohibited by the rules and involves a vo-stroke penalty.

The infraction was brought to the attention of Dwyer, who conferred with the Spaniards. Pinero told him the ball had not been cleaned and Dwyer ruled no infraction had occurred. A two-shot penalty was thus avoided.

Pate said he was not bothered by the ruling, but he bogeyed the next three holes.
"It doesn't make any difference," Stockton said. "We
